Notwithstanding the foregoing of this Time Limit section, when one or more yachts remain on the course and are clearly delaying the start of a subsequent race, the Race Committee may order the race completed and score each of the one or more yachts with points equal to its current position on the race course. At the discretion of the Primary Race Officer (PRO), a break can be called via a VHF radio transmission and/or by voice. If the break is called while one or more competitors are racing, the one or more competitors shall complete the current race before engaging in the break or any break-related activity. If a competitor leaves a radius, of one hundred (100) meters, of the Starting Line to engage in the break or any break-related activity (e.g., a biological activity), the competitor should return to a position within the radius of the Starting Line AS SOON AS POSSIBLE and remain in a reasonable area within or about the radius of the Starting Line until a next warning signal of a next race. If a member of the Race Committee determines that a competitor is not returning to a position within the radius of the Starting Line AS SOON AS POSSIBLE, the PRO can commence a race at his or her discretion, and the competitor will not have any grounds for redress after such determination of the member of the Race Committee. Note to the (un)wise: Don't not lollygag, shoot the breeze at the dock or elsewhere, or sit-around scratching your rump, among other non-race-related activities. Just get your business done and get back out there to race.
